

Administrative Lead Time at DoD Inventory Control Points

JUN 15

This audit determined that DoD inventory control points can reduce administrative lead time and improve readiness. DoD inventory control points can achieve this by sharing with one another their best ideas and practices for reducing administrative lead time and by establishing performance measures. The implementation of the recommendations could result in $2 billion put to better use from FYs 1996 to 2001 by reducing DoD inventory and the cost to maintain inventory needed to cover administrative lead time.

Report No. 95-238

1995

