MESSAGE FROM THE OMBUDSMAN

March 22, 2011

MEMORANDUM FOR ALL PERSONNEL

SUBJECT: Annual Report for Fiscal Year 2010

The Office of the Ombuds was administratively established on March 1, 2009 by then Acting Inspector General Gordon S. Heddell, with the mission of being an independent, impartial resource that provides Department of Defense Office of Inspector General (DoD IG) employees worldwide with informal and confidential means of early dispute resolution. I am proud to serve as the first organizational Ombudsman for the DoD IG. In an effort to further professionalize the DoD IG Office of the Ombuds, on March 11, 2010 I became a Certified Organizational Ombudsman PractitionerSM by the International Ombudsman Association and was among the first cadre of professionals to receive this certification worldwide.

To provide a professional working environment that fosters commitment, excellence, and teamwork, it is DoD IG policy to promote the amicable and conciliatory resolution of internal conflicts, disputes and workplace concerns. To that end, this office receives concerns about alleged improprieties and systemic problems; helps analyze complex and difficult problems; serves as a feedback mechanism for organizational climate issues; and explores non-adversarial approaches for resolving concerns.

Pursuant to Inspector General Instruction 5100.1(F), I am pleased to present the second DoD IG Office of the Ombuds Annual Report for the reporting period October 1, 2009 through September 30, 2010. This report highlights major changes and accomplishments and provides a summary of issues presented throughout the reporting period in the form of metrics and narrative examples. I hope all DoD IG employees, managers, and senior leadership will find this report a useful tool to identify opportunities for positive change.

Questions may be directed to me by phone, 703-699-5637 or email, ombuds@dodig.mil.

Scott M. Deyo
Ombudsman

METHODS

The organizational ombudsman model is dynamic and flexible in that it offers multiple (and customized) conflict resolution business lines.

WHAT PROCESSES DO YOU USE?

Conciliation. Building a positive relationship between the parties to a dispute.

Negotiation. The fundamental process of dialogue between interdependent parties who seek to satisfy needs, interests, and/or find acceptable solutions to shared problems.

Mediation. A facilitated negotiation to allow parties reach an acceptable resolution of issues in dispute.

Shuttle Diplomacy. Serving as an intermediary between involved parties in dispute without those individuals being in direct contact with one another (e.g. a mediator “shuttling” back and forth).

Group Facilitation. A variety of techniques to help parties clarify goals, improve the flow of communication, and achieve specific group objectives

Partnering. Used to improve working relationships by seeking to prevent disputes before they occur.

Training/Education. Teaching the conditions that cause conflict and using experiential opportunities to learn practical skills for handling resolution in a respectful and positive way.

Conflict Coaching. Assisting individuals determine behaviors/actions that will help them reach their objectives as it relates to how they approach and resolve specific problems or overarching conflict.

Ombuds Climate Assessment. A process applied within larger groups that identifies shared interests, differences, problems and opportunities for resolution and/or positive organizational change. The climate assessment process continued to be used extensively during this reporting period. Regarding process, employees in specific organizations were asked three broad questions: what is working well (and why); what isn't working well (and why); and what changes should be made. While maintaining confidentiality, this method highlighted organizational successes, areas of concern, and solicited specific recommended changes to improve their Division, Component, and/or DoD IG as a whole. Further, it was a proactive way to bring issues to the forefront and allow leadership to address problems before they escalate.

HOW DO YOU TRACK WHAT YOU DO?

In April 2007, the International Ombudsman Association task force on database categories presented “Comparing Apples to Apples” at its annual conference. This presentation summarized the group's efforts over four years to develop categories and subcategories that Ombuds worldwide could use “to classify the kinds of issues, questions and concerns with which they are asked to assist.”

Their research was initiated by an underlying belief that “the capacity of a profession to represent the nature of its work to its own members and to others is a defining characteristic of its professional maturity.” Further, it was theorized that using consistent data would allow monitoring of concerns over time; standardize professional responses; identify training needs; consistently capture ombuds' work; and represent our experiences to colleagues and administrators. Regarding process, the task force researched, created preliminary categories, coordinated extensively (through surveys and interviews), benchmarked, and incorporated additional recommended changes from Ombuds globally. The DoD IG Office of the Ombuds adopted these uniform reporting categories, which may be found at Appendix B.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In fiscal year (FY) 2010, the Ombuds met with 325 employees: 66 (20%) individual employees and 259 (80%) that voluntarily participated in five organizational climate assessments. Employees are free to discuss the full spectrum of workplace concerns without attribution, and often share multiple issues. Although the number of visitors increased by 100 (45 percent) from FY 2009, there was a 9 percent reduction in the number of issues presented (from 1055 in FY 2009 to 963 in FY 2010). Table 1 shows the number and percent of issues presented in fiscal years 2009 and 2010, to include the change by percent, or growth rate.

NOTE: Fiscal Year 2009 reflects a partial year, from March 1, 2009 (the date the DoD IG Office of the Ombuds was established) through September 30, 2009.

Concerns about the mission, strategy and organization moved up to the top major category this year, with the related subcategory “Leadership and Management” remaining as the top concern for a second year. Issues related to supervisors remain a priority concern, but fell to second with a 21 percent drop in FY 2010 (from 362 to 285). Employees who spoke with the Ombuds were concerned about how the work was accomplished (as related to timeliness and relevance of OIG work products). One observer noted this is an affirmative testament to our workforce’s dedication and commitment to making the DoD IG a world class organization.

There was a significant increase in the number of issues related to career progression and development (from 71 to 139, or 96 percent). A related subcategory focused on how positions were being filled (adherence to merit systems principles and alleged pre-selection). In FY 2010, we saw double digit reductions in the number of issues expressed about colleagues (from 93 to 34, or 63%) and values, ethics and standards (from 60 to 20, or 67% reduction). The remainder of this report will focus on the issues by subcategory. Analysis and statistical summaries provided on the following pages are drawn from the full data set contained in Table 5 of the Appendix A. Please note that metrics presented in this report only reflect the thoughts of those individuals visiting the Ombuds, and should not be extrapolated to reflect the entire agency.

DATA POINTS - Top Ten Issues (Subcategories)

Table 1 displayed the number of issues presented within each major category. Each of these major categories, however, have more specific subcategories. For example, the major category “Supervisory Relationships” comprises of supervisory behaviors such as reasonable assignments, providing constructive feedback, discipline, etc. The chart below focuses on the top subcategories, which pull from a variety of major categories. Full data tables, which list all of the categories and subcategories, may be found at Appendix A.

Subcategory Title	No.
1. Leadership and Management	80
Quality/capacity of management/leadership decisions, reassignments, reorganizations, etc.
2. Data/Methodology/Interpretation of Results	66
Disputes about the conduct, outcomes and interpretation of studies and resulting data
3. Supervisory Effectiveness	54
Management of component/division, failure to address issues
4. Career Development/Coaching/Mentoring	49
Classroom, on-the-job, and varied assignments as training and developmental opportunities
5. Mission/Strategic and Technical Management	48
Principles, decisions and actions related to where and how the organization is moving
6. Priority Setting/Funding	46
Disputes about setting priorities and/or allocation of funding within programs
7. Job Application/Selection and Recruitment Processes	46
Recruitment and selection processes; facilitation of job applications; short-listing and criteria for selection; disputed decisions linked to recruitment and selection
8. Communication (Corporate)	41
Content, quality, style, timing, effects and amount of communication about strategic issues
9. Respect/Treatment	37
Demonstrations of inappropriate regard for people, not listening, rudeness, crudeness, etc.
10. Communication (Managerial)	35
Quality and/or quantity of communication

DATA POINTS - Concerns with Upward Shift

Table 2 displays the subcategories with the largest numeric increases from FY 2009 to FY 2010. This year there were six times the number of concerns expressed about “Data/Methodology/Interpretation of Results,” where employees cited relevant concerns 66 times (57 more than last year). Related examples include improper project planning, insufficient mentoring and functional training for junior professionals (to properly and independently carry out critical business processes), excessive top level reviews, and imbedded bureaucracy that halts seemingly straightforward matters (which results in final approval taking months rather than days).

There was a spike in the number of concerns about the job application/selection and recruitment processes (from 17 to 46, or 171 percent increase). The prevailing theme revolved around perceptions of pre-selection and alleged disregard for merit systems principles. The Ombuds was apprised 46 times (29 more than in FY 2009, or a 171 percent increase) of allegations where, by and large:

- Employees “knew” who would be selected;
- The job was advertised, but no interviews were conducted and selections were made;
- Interviews were a mere formality, with no structure or evaluation criteria used; and
- Positions weren’t even advertised and selections were made without interviews.

Employees were particularly concerned about situations where such “shoe-in selections” involved candidates from outside the DoD IG, and called into question selecting officials’ fairness and objectivity. Some individuals stated they understood that the agency’s hiring process and decisions may well have been legally correct and according to policy. (Those that alleged a violation were referred to the Director, Human Capital Advisory Services and Office of Professional Responsibility). However, using such flexibilities sent the following messages (intended or not):

- The full range of qualified candidates will not receive a fair and thorough review;
- Only the “favorite” would be selected;
- “Others need not apply” to future vacancies; and/or
- “The limits of your capability and upward mobility have been reached.”

The Director, Human Capital Advisory Services and Chair, Executive Resources Board, were advised of these concerns to consider and take actions they deemed appropriate.

Issues Subcategory	FY09		FY10		Change
	#	%	#	%	#	%
Data/Methodology/Interpretation of Results	9	3%	66	18%	57	633%

DATA POINTS – Improvements

Subcategories with the greatest numeric decreases from FY 2009 to FY 2010 are shown in Table 3. There were 29 fewer concerns about corporate communications. In other words, employees believed senior leaders were doing a better job of providing information. There were fewer concerns about the use and abuse of power/authority in the workplace, questionable business practices, and uncomfortable climates within the organization. Employees that visited the Ombuds in FY 2010 cited fewer problematic behaviors from supervisors. Specifically, there were marked reductions in the number of concerns about managerial integrity, professional conduct, reputation, treatment of subordinates, and communication.

A large number of staff members gave credit to the Inspector General's emphasis on leadership training for supervisors, senior staff, and executives. In FY 2010, a total of 225 leaders attended leadership workshops, which shed light on specific leadership practices required for outstanding results. Employees whose supervisor or team leader attended these trainings noted significant improvements in their boss' leadership behaviors.

NARRATIVE – Sample of Compliments

There were a substantial number of employees who saw improvements within the DoD IG during this reporting period. This section captures some of the positive behaviors and/or changes employees observed.

MISSION/SENIOR LEADERSHIP

- “OIG has an extremely important mission with high visibility”
- “Intense work but love it; very motivating”
- “Messages from IG very honest and candid”
- “Senior leader remembered my name and acknowledged my contributions”

MANAGEMENT

- Synonyms: “Fantastic; exceptional; flexible; honest; open; approachable; friendly; relaxed “
- “Trying to be more efficient; seeing products go out faster”
- “Managers nurture staff; trust and empower staff”
- “I saw positive changes when my boss came back from the Leadership Challenge”
- “We're treated like professionals; empowered; given freedom to work”
- “Care about you as a person and a professional”
- “Making themselves more available; open door policy appreciated”
- “Really listens to our concerns; responsive”
- “Keeps everyone on the same playing field; more lateral than vertical; no ‘junior’ or ‘senior’”
- “Fosters a learning environment”
 - “We are able to have open dialogue; can present divergent ideas”
 - “My boss listens and respects me even when we disagree”
- “Weekly meetings are very informative”
- “Our boss always reports out meetings with the front office”
- “As a result [of above characteristic(s)], I'm more motivated and willing to go the extra mile”

MORALE/TEAMWORK

- “Physical fitness program made a huge positive impact on productivity”
- “Telework is supported; makes a huge difference in [the DC] area”
- “There's a good work-life balance”
- “They mean what they say about family comes first; very flexible and understanding “
- “There's a lot of internal cooperation behind the scenes”
- “Staff will go above and beyond for you”
- “Very seasoned and professional group with diverse experience”
- “Leadership Challenge was excellent”
- “New employee orientation was very informative”

NARRATIVE – Sample of Top Concerns

Ombuds hear the most unique, difficult, challenging, complex, and perplexing issues that organizations face. Employees anonymously bring forward unpopular, controversial, yet critically important problems to the attention of the Ombuds to help bring resolution informally. Here is a sample of those concerns.

1. LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT

- “What is our mission? What are our emerging issues today? What is our strategic plan?”
- “We have a mission and vision but what about an action plan?”
- “Upper management does not show trust or outward support; overly critical; rarely positive”
- “We don’t know our next project; research proposals are disapproved with no reason”
- “Mission has increased, but there are no new resources or billets”
- “Our senior leader is extremely rude and disrespectful to us and to customers; automatically says no without consideration; attitude permeates other senior leaders and Component”

2. DATA/METHODOLOGY/INTERPRETATION OF RESULTS

- “We need to improve how we properly plan; need actionable projects”
- “We’re shying away from controversial findings; are there hidden agendas?”
- “Reports get edited by entire chain of command; originator not included or briefed”
- “We need to hold customers accountable for deadlines (with minimal extensions)”

3. SUPERVISORY EFFECTIVENESS

- “We talk about change but nothing happens; good ideas are dying on the vine”
- “Entrenched in ways of doing business; ‘We’ve always done it this way’ attitude; stagnant”
- “Not open to testing potentially more efficient methodologies”
- “Gripes should go across or up the chain; not shared with subordinates”
- “Team leaders are ‘quasi-supervisory’ and really need training in leadership”
- “Need a learning environment where diverse views are encouraged”

4. CAREER DEVELOPMENT/COACHING/MENTORING

- “Unequal grade structures for similar work across various divisions”
- “People are promoted too fast”
- “Mid-level folks are lost or forgotten; need an individualized career plan”

- “Going beyond compliments and alluding to future positions is crossing the line”
- “A select few are always chosen for travel and trainings; prepositioned to move up”

5. MISSION/STRATEGIC AND TECHNICAL MANAGEMENT

- “How can you expect timely and relevant products when you add multiple layers of review?!”
- “There are no metrics in place to track the number of days in between each process phase”
- “Upper level reviews focus more on formatting/word choice than substance”

6. PRIORITY SETTING/FUNDING

- Widespread Downtime: “Junior staff are not assigned to projects immediately; staff are told to read policy manuals for “[3, 6, 9, 14] months”; some are working on research projects for “a year or more, which are often disapproved”; “there’s nothing to do when reports go through the chain for review (which can take months longer than the actual field work, and we ‘re not allowed to start a new project)”; “I just want to be productive”; “this is horribly wasteful”
- “Automatically says ‘no’ to more manpower/resources/training; very little overall support ”

7. JOB APPLICATION/SELECTION AND RECRUITMENT PROCESSES

- Favoritism / Pre-Selection: “Why are Directors allowed to hire their own people without interviewing?”; “We always know who will be promoted before announcements are made“
- “Promotions are given if you're eligible and you are liked; not if you have diverse views”

8. COMMUNICATION (CORPORATE)

- “Policies and standards are changed without feedback from the top”
- “Need more thorough activity reports (for internal Component info)”

9. RESPECT/TREATMENT

- “Positive feedback is sandwiched between two negatives”; “Simple recognition is lacking”
- “Staff are chastised in front of others rather than behind closed doors”

10. COMMUNICATION (MANAGERIAL)

- “You only hear things through the grapevine”; “Some feel left out of the loop”
- “Information from the top doesn’t flow all the way down”
- “Sometimes receive conflicting directions from chain of command”
- “DO NOT USE ALL CAPS WHEN WRITING; it's like ‘yelling’ and unprofessional”

NARRATIVE - Samples of Employee Recommendations

Employees not only discuss problems with the Ombuds, they generate new and innovative ideas that challenge the status quo. To help employees play a role in agency transformation, the Ombuds serves as an additional resource for employee engagement, motivating participation, leveraging knowledge, and addressing problems (or ideas) they would otherwise not reveal through normal channels. This section shares the anonymous suggestions provided to the Ombuds to help resolve their underlying concerns. These recommendations were shared with senior DoD IG leaders for information and appropriate action.

MISSION/LEADERSHIP

- Ensure all Component missions and goals align with the IG (and DoD) strategic plan
- OIG list of yearly priorities should mention something from all Components
- Expand the field more than headquarters
- Develop a uniform approach on how to do oversight
- As much as possible, provide underlying reasons for decisions and pass it along
- Invite and adopt innovative change; stop saying, "this is how we've always done it"
- Fully deploy desktop VTCs to the field; stop requiring field leaders to travel to headquarters
- When reviewing reports, focus on substance, not minor wording/formatting issues
- Rotate high visibility assignments to different people and different teams
- Need more effective debriefing/after action sessions to reflect and improve
- Provide justification for hiring decisions, to include process (panels, ranking system, results)
- Ensure new staff are substantively involved from day one
- Keep doing 360° reviews and Leadership Challenge course; saw major changes in manager
- Hold our feet to the fire for things under our control, but don't hold us accountable if the product sits on others' desks for months
- Don't delegate everything; take ownership over the issues and act
- Add an Executive Coaching resource internally; make a requirement for all SES
- Ask "what do you need from me to help you do your job?"
- Ensure fair rotation of who serves in the "acting" position when the leader is out
- Be more open to change; be more willing to shuffle up staff and fix broken processes
- Focus on interests, not just positions
- Say "good morning" and "hello" to employees by name when you see them

- Be more attentive to making people feel valued
- Assign note-taker at all staff meetings and all-hands; distribute and/or post on intranet
- Support a learning environment; its ok to disagree and provide different ideas

PROCESS IMPROVEMENT

- We have to give much more attention to planning phase
- Cut out layers of review for no or uncontested findings
- Coordinate work product reviews concurrently, not sequentially
- More rapid response assessments and memo reports
- Coordinate reviews of draft reports concurrently, not sequentially
- Use Lean Six Sigma (LSS) on all major processes in every DoD IG Component
- Have more than one team evaluate process improvement using different methods (not just LSS)
- Start implementing plans of action and milestones (POA&Ms)

ADMINISTRATIVE

- We need more timely, thorough and responsive service from our administrative support partners
- “We’re auditors and investigators: provide as much info as possible to help us understand”
- Alternatively, admin support partners need more patience and professionalism from staff
- Start with a collaborative “lets figure out how to get to yes” stance rather than an automatic “no”
- List all of our training requirements, especially the mandatory courses, by FY/CY
- Ensure new employees have computers on the 1st or 2nd day
- Address inconsistencies with organization charts; include all components
- Provide more frequent and thorough updates on the BRAC Mark Center move
- Ensure the decision to telework rests with the first line supervisor; does not require SES approval
- If a policy changes, give us a short summary of what changed and how that impacts us
- If a procedure changes, let us know by email and post it on a shared drive
- Consider allowing career interns an opportunity to “appeal” proposed actions to SES
- Implement a new tracking system that has good reporting capabilities
- Formalize a program to rotate every two years
- Initiate more function-specific training
- Support professional development courses (i.e. classes that enrich but not specifically related to job)
- Convert contractors into government positions to increase accountability

- Make sure all job advertisements are forwarded to staff
- Find meaningful ways to improve administrative support to field offices
- Inventory staff's knowledge and skills; capture electronically (i.e. SharePoint) for easy retrieval
- Centralize like or related functions (i.e. procurement, training, edit) for oversight and consistency
- More emphasis on security (i.e. using special alert system for emergencies) and safety (elevate role)

POLICY CLARIFICATIONS

- Fitness Program. Section C of IG Instruction 6100.2, "Physical Fitness Program," December 3, 2009, states "this Instruction does not apply to DoD IG part-time personnel, contractors, summer hires, or interns." Some personnel participating in the Defense Career Intern Program expressed concerns about being excluded from participating. The following clarification was received from HCAS, "The intern exclusion was not meant to nor does it apply to permanent employees in a career ladder program or the DCIP program."
- After a number of new staff stated they did not know the DoD IG was moving to the Mark Center, HCAS amended all vacancy announcements to include a statement about the BRAC move from Arlington to Alexandria, VA. Hiring managers were reminded to notify candidates and fully disclose this information about the move during the hiring process.

IMPACT

Table 4 displays the number (and percent) of impacts described to the Ombuds between FY 2009 and FY 2010, to include the numeric change between fiscal years. (The percent change between fiscal years was excluded to prevent misleading data.)

The 325 employees that shared their concerns with the Ombuds described 387 adverse impacts on them personally, on their team, component, and the mission. This is an average of 1.2 impacts per person for FY 2010; down from 1.9 average impacts per person in FY 2009. There was a tie for the number one impact: lowered morale and delayed/missed deadlines comprised of one third of the stated consequences of workplace concerns.

Employees cited 32 instances where they felt a manager/leader's handling of workplace matters (or not handling them) severely damaged his/her credibility. A similar number of consequences of workplace conflict were depicted as reduced collaboration with colleagues, decreased satisfaction with the job, quality problems, which often led to employee turnover.
